

FINAL SESSION 59TH CONGRESS

Opened Amid Brilliant Scenes In The City Of Washington Promptly At Noon
Today.

PRESIDENT SENDS NOMINATIONS

Of Cabinet Officers And Of William H. Moody As Associate Justice Of The Supreme Court-- Treasury Reports Its Needs.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—Promptly at noon today the gavel of Vice-President Fairbanks, president of the senate, and Speaker Cannon of the House, fell for the opening of the last session of the 59th congress. The opening prayers were made by the chaplains, Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale in the Senate and Rev. H. N. Conden in the House.

In both bodies the first work was the appointment of committees to wait upon the President and inform him that congress was ready to receive any communication he had to send. Resolutions of respect were offered to the memories of the late Representative Hoar of Massachusetts, of Representative Hitt of Illinois, and Representative Ketchum of New York, who passed away during the recess.

The scene at the opening was a brilliant and busy one. There were the greetings among members, and the hundreds of visitors with beautifully gowned women predominating. Corridors, committee rooms and cloak rooms were thronged. The bustle extended even to the floors of the chambers.

There was much good natured chaff and rally extended between the victors and the vanquished at the recent election. Several of the best-known figures in both branches were defeated at the polls last month and will retire with the expiration of the session begun today.

Following the usual formalities and after being in session less than an hour, the two houses adjourned until tomorrow. In the senate Penrose introduced a resolution calling on the President for all information regarding the dismissal of the battalion of negro troops at Ft. Reno, on account of the affray at Brownville, Texas.

TWO GRAND OPERAS FOR NEW YORK CITY

New Theatre Opens Tonight with High-Class Music-Drama at Popular Prices.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Dec. 3.—Playgoers and music lovers of the metropolis are on edge in anticipation of the opening of the new Manhattan opera-house tonight. The event is one of more than ordinary importance in the amusement world and the success of the venture will be watched with keen interest. In the first place it means the realization of an ambition that Oscar Hammerstein has nursed for many years to give New York first-class grand opera at popular prices. It means also that New York, alone among the great cities of the world, will have two rival grand operas competing at the same time for its favor and patronage. Mr. Hammerstein has spared no expense to make the project a success. Backed, it is said, by the wealth of Charles M. Schwab and several other millionaires whose admittance to the select list of boxholders at the Metropolitan. Mr. Hammerstein has gathered together an aggregation of song birds that bears favorable comparison with the famous Carle organization. Furthermore, in the new Manhattan opera-house he has a temple of music that is unexcelled in its size, convenience and luxurious furnishings.

REV. WILLIAM WEBB ENTHRONED BISHOP MILWAUKEE DIOCESE

Impressive Ceremonies Attendant on Consecration of Successor to Late Isaac Lea Nicholson.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 3.—The enthronement of Rt. Rev. William Webb as bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Milwaukee took place today and was one of the most brilliant ceremonies of its kind that has ever taken place in this city. It began in All Saints' Cathedral soon after 10 o'clock this morning and consumed several hours. The large church was crowded. The presiding bishops, co-consecrators and other prominent participants in the ceremonies included a majority of the Episcopal bishops of the middle west. The choral service was furnished by a selected choir from the student body of Nashotah house, the Episcopal seminary of which the new bishop of Milwaukee has been president for nearly ten years. Bishop White of Michigan City preached the consecration sermon. One of the most impressive features of the ceremony was the entrance of the procession which came into the church in two divisions. The procession was preceded by a crucifer vested in scarlet cassock and gilded alb. Then came the vestry, the standing committees of the diocese, and the visiting bishops. The second division consisted of the presiding bishops, the bishop-elect and his attendants, the preacher, the co-consecrators, and closing the procession, the presiding bishop. The service of enthronement was followed by a high celebration of the Holy Eucharist, with Bishop Webb as celebrant.

ANOTHER OKLAHOMA PASTURE IS OPEN

Fully Twenty-five Thousand Bids for Quarter Sections in Big Reservations Expected.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Lawton, Okla., Dec. 3.—This was the busiest day in the history of the Lawton land office. It was the first day for receiving bids on the unallotted portions of the 505,000 acres in the Kiowa-Comanche-Apache reservation. The bids are to be received during the entire week and if the record of the opening day be taken as a criterion it would not be surprising if the total number of bids exceeded 25,000. This means that thousands of new farms and thousands of industrious citizens will be added to the resources of the new state of Oklahoma by next spring. Under the law no bid of less than $5 an acre will be considered. Each bidder may put in as many proposals as he desires, but the maximum to be sold to any one bidder is limited to a single quarter section. The bids will be opened one week from today. The great pasture thrown open is watered on its southern edge by the Red river and contains a large area of very fertile land. Its opening to white settlement leaves in Oklahoma only one other large reservation, the opening of which will probably not be long delayed. This is the 300,000 acres of the segregated coal and asphalt lands of the Chickasaws and Choctaws, in the southern part of the Indian Territory. This reservation abounds not only in valuable mineral deposits, but in fertile land, which has remained a wilderness by reason of its segregation.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Dec. 3.—The fourth annual convention of the Citizens' Industrial Association of America, which began a two days' session in this city today, will voice a demand for the establishment of industrial schools throughout the United States. The association, which has stood steadfast for the principle of "open shop" in labor and against "trusts" of either labor or capital, will also devote much attention to checking tendencies toward socialism and the development of class interests in politics and industry. At the opening of the convention there were present representatives of between 300 and 400 industrial bodies, national and local, which comprise the membership of the association.

DAVIDSON MAY BECOME SENATORIAL CANDIDATE

Friends Of Governor Are Urging Him To Announce Himself, Claiming Popularity Assures Election Under Primary Law.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Dec. 3.—Friends of Governor J. O. Davidson are urging him to plan to be a candidate for the United States senate two years hence when the term of the present senior senator, John C. Spooner, expires. Governor Davidson has not yet made any announcement with reference to this matter, other than to indicate on the stump this summer and fall that the governorship was the acme of his political ambition. However, he has said nothing to indicate that he will retire to private life when his term as governor is out. The great popularity of the governor, shown by his plurality of 80,000 votes in the recent election, has caused his friends to declare that the senatorship, which is the subject of a popular nominating vote to be held in September, 1908, according to the primary election law, could be captured easily by so popular a man. Senator Spooner has said nothing as yet as to whether he will be a candidate to retain his seat, but it is said that he will not run unless things shape up so as to practically assure his election. He does not like the idea of being defeated after so many honors have come to him. He came out for Davidson in the recent primaries and election and it was supposed by some that this meant that Davidson would be for Spooner's re-election, but Davidson's friends are now declaring that Spooner came into the Davidson camp, not only uninvited but contrary to the wishes of Davidson, and only because Spooner wanted to take a position opposite to that of Senator La Follette. "If Spooner wanted to come out for Jim," say the Davidson people, "there was no law to prevent him from doing it." Secretary of State Houser, believed to be the La Follette candidate, has already taken the field for the United States senate, and will make an aggressive campaign for the primary plebiscites held almost two years hence. Sentiment among the Davidson people is getting stronger daily that the only man who can head Houser off is Davidson, but the events of the coming session of the Wisconsin legislature will have a strong bearing on the situation, for the La Follette people will watch every move of the administration, and they expect that the Davidson boom will wear itself out before the time comes for the senatorial campaign to open.

He has been head of the greatest military power in Europe for 17 years, and is 46 years old, having been born in 1859. He was a lad of 10 when the war with France under Napoleon III. changed the face of Europe, and his grandfather was then Emperor of Germany and King of Prussia. The play will be produced by Liebler & Co., which means that it will be finely staged.

TELL STORY OF CIVILIZATION.

This Is Declared to Be the Function of the Museums.

The aim and the methods of art museums, as well as other phases of life, have felt the vitalizing touch of that spirit of human sympathy, of recognition of mutual responsibility and wish for human helpfulness, whose rapid growth and onward speed have been one of the marked features of the last quarter-century, says the Craftsman. It has not been so very long since a museum was something quite apart from the daily life of the people, a place in which were kept things beautiful or interesting, whither one might go on an idle holiday, as upon a pilgrimage. But now the museums are being humanized, made a beneficent part of everyday life, so organized and related to man's activities that they not only recount a coherent story of his aspirations toward the beautiful in past ages, but also recognize his present efforts to achieve beauty and show him how he may make other ages and other nations give him aid.

And, aside from the advantages on the practical and aesthetic sides of life which are resulting from the new spirit in museum management, there is also an important ethical influence. For, as people realize through museum collections, so brought together and related as to make that realization easy, how the human race has always striven to give expression to its ideas of beauty and has made that expression a part of its daily life, they get a new sense of the universal brotherhood of humanity. And the world advances only as men feel and respond to the urge of that kinship.

Girls Are So Queer.

"No, I never did like him. Why, when he used to write me glowing love letters I would only glance over them once."

"Only once, dear?"

"Well—or—sometimes when I couldn't make out his abominable scrawl I would glance over them the second time."

"Indeed! And that was all?"

"Except sometimes at night I would take them from under my pillow and read them just to kill time."

"And that was the end?"

"Yes, only on rainy days I used to look over them again just to see how silly a man can be when he starts writing love letters. But I only glanced over them, dear. I never did like him."

Girls Are So Queer.

"No, I never did like him. Why, when he used to write me glowing love letters I would only glance over them once."

"Only once, dear?"

"Well—or—sometimes when I couldn't make out his abominable scrawl I would glance over them the second time."

"Indeed! And that was all?"

"Except sometimes at night I would take them from under my pillow and read them just to kill time."

"And that was the end?"

"THE SPIRIT OF FLOWERS."

Lavender in a Way Unique Among Pleasant Smelling Plants.

If, as the South Sea Islanders say, scent is the spirit of a flower—while its reason for covering newly-made graves with flowers—then lavender must rank very high, spiritually, in flower circles, its scent being almost its whole claim to existence, though the grace of its coloring should count for something also. One utters the truism that the smell of lavender is unlike that of any other flower, for getting more completely than usual that this is true of every flower in the world. Whether legendary or not, the theory that derives the name of lavender from its scent is a very pleasant one. The Welsh name for it, as far back as the thirteenth century, was certainly blifant and blifant; so it is easy to believe that this, too, came from the Latin lavare, to wash, and therefore refers to the old Roman custom of putting the flowers in their baths for the sake of their fragrance. That laundry and lavender should have a common origin is more poetic than it may sound.

FOURTHS OF THE FIFTH.

The Rev. Nathaniel Howe of Hopkinton, who died in 1837, aged 72, was a Federalist in politics, and his political sermons stirred the wrath of his hearers, who were mostly Democrats. In the midst of one of these sermons the leader of the opposite party felt aggrieved, and called out: "Why don't you call names, Mr. Howe?"

"I do not wish to be interrupted," said the parson, solemnly, and went on.

In a little while the voice came more angrily than before: "Why don't you call names, Mr. Howe?"

"There is no need of it while conscience is doing her work so well," was the quiet response.

A Demonstration.

Baumer was making a few purchases at the stores and while being served saw a silver dollar lying on the floor. Quivering with excitement and glancing to see that no one was observing him, he quite accidentally dropped one of his gloves on top of the coin and picked up the glove—but not the coin, which still remained on the floor. Just as he was in the act, however, an assistant approached and blandly said:

"Good evening, sir. Will you allow me to show you a bottle of our celebrated glass, which sticks—"

But Baumer had vanished.

CUBAN ELECTION TO BE ANNULLED

GOV. MAGOON ANNOUNCES PLAN OF UNITED STATES.

MODERATES NOT PLEASED

Decree Declaring Seats of Second Series. Vacant. They Say, Will Surely Result in New Insurrection.

Havana, Dec. 3.—"By a decree to be issued soon, under specific authority of the president of the United States, the seats of all members of the second series of the Cuban congress, elected in 1905, will be declared vacant." This was the announcement made by Gov. Magoon Sunday to 25 senators and members of the house of representatives whom he had invited to attend a conference in the palace.

Gov. Magoon particularly called the attention of the members to the fact that the determination as to the status of the congress had been reserved by the peace commission for consideration at Washington. He then communicated to them the final determination of President Roosevelt that the seats of all senators and representatives elected in 1905 shall be considered vacant from October 12, 1906, the vacancies thereby created being filled by an election under the provisional government in accordance with the proclamation of Gov. Taft September 29.

First Series Holds on.

The first series of senators and representatives elected in 1901 will be continued in office if moral peace, tranquility and public confidence be restored to such an extent that an election for the vacant seats may be held during 1907, and that there may be at the same time an election of the successors of representatives whose terms expire December 31, 1907, without shortening these terms, thus avoiding the necessity for two elections.

Gov. Magoon explained to the members of congress that he considered it only fair and courteous to submit to them the terms of the decree prior to its formal promulgation, so that they might decide what attitude they desired to assume. After all the facts had been placed before them Senators Dolz and Tamayo expressed their appreciation of the courtesy, on behalf of their colleagues, and the conference then adjourned.

Moderates Are Displeased.

After the conference, former Minister of the Treasury Fontes y Sterling, Senator Dolz and other moderates expressed strong dissatisfaction with the terms of the decree, which they declared was unfair, but they said they recognized the utility of any project. Gen. Luis Rivera, ex-secretary of the interior, said Sunday night that he realized the decree merely carried out an obligation of interest to the peace commissioners, but he greatly deplored it, believing its effect would be disastrous.

He said he was firm in the belief that the only means of establishing peaceful conditions consist in the election of an entirely new congress, whereas the proposed election, which would result in turning over the government to liberal control, would surely result in a new insurrection the moment the American troops were withdrawn from the island. The fact was, said Gen. Rivera, that the United States had ignored this, which was patent to all Cubans, and pointed irresistibly to the conclusion that if the United States withdrew it would be with the full recognition of the necessity for a speedy return and the consequent extinction of Cuban independence.

It has been on the market for forty years, and its record in that time is one of which we are justly proud—it is a record of forty years of cures. As a remedy for Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison and all diseases arising from an impure or poisoned condition of the blood, S. S. S. has no equal. It goes into the circulation and thoroughly cleanses it of all impurities and makes a complete and lasting cure of these troubles and disorders. It furnishes to weak, polluted blood, rich, health-giving and health-sustaining qualities, and as this pure, fresh stream circulates through the system, all parts of the body are invigorated and made strong and healthy. S. S. S. is the only blood medicine on the market that can claim absolute freedom from minerals in any form. CONDITIONS IN SAN FRANCISCO

The earthquake and fire which devastated San Francisco, last spring, was a calamity which has no parallel in the history of the country. Generous sympathy was expressed from all parts of the world, and when the afflicted people recovered from the shock, and commenced the work of rebuilding, they were commended for sublime pluck and courage.

But the afflicted city is suffering today from a moral leprosy, which is sapping its life, and retarding its reconstruction. The cause of this latter calamity is due to the tyranny of organized labor, and a general epidemic of graft and oppression.

The national government has found it necessary to take a hand in purifying the city, and it is more than probable that graft will be detected and punished, but the labor thrall continues, with no prospect of a change to more wholesome conditions. The New York Sun recently sent a special correspondent to San Francisco, to investigate. His report, under the head of "Union Labor Strangling City," is a revelation, which will be read with interest and disgust, by all intelligent people. He says:

"For some years San Francisco has been a closed shop. It is now not only closed but bolted and barred as well. Union labor has long governed this town.

"On the head of union labor rests the responsibility for the present governmental conditions. The officeholders who have been plundering the city were elected by union labor. Union labor keeps them in office. Union labor is doing its best to stand between them and the justice of this outraged community.

"In industrial affairs union labor has embarked upon a career that all who love the city must hope will prove suicidal. Observe the conditions; there is a society of labor here that has put back the rebuilding of the city to an incalculable extent. Many and many a contractor cannot get labor at any price. Scores of plans for new buildings in the burned district lie idle and unacted upon because the laborers to execute them are unobtainable. Acres of ruins are still untouched because there are not laborers enough to clear them up.

"And yet the face of these facts, which any man may see with his own eyes in two minutes' walk through the streets, union labor is making every effort to prevent importation of mechanics and laborers.

"At its meeting last week the Building Trades Council, one of the two central labor organizations of the city, received nearly 250 letters from skilled mechanics in various parts of the country asking what were the conditions of labor here, what the demands, wages, living accommodations and so on.

"The council instructed its secretary to write in every case that the supply of labor now here exceeded the demand, and that living accommodations were few and high in price.

"This city finds itself in a situation unparalleled in the history of American municipalities.

"Struggling to regain its feet after utter prostration by the greatest calamity of modern times, it finds that its government is in the hands of the most unblushing and high-handed set of crooks that ever plundered any community; that graft and blackmail are triumphant in practically every department; that the very officials who should be leading the work of reconstruction and encouraging the faint-hearted and the stricken, are devoting their talents exclusively and with unflinching zeal to filling their own pockets at the expense of the helpless community.

"But worse than all these things, so far as the rehabilitation of San Francisco is concerned, is the condition of affairs among the workmen. Organized labor is at the city's throat.

"Meantime the organization of more unions has gone gayly on. Even the Greeks and Italians who handle pick and shovel on the street railways have been rounded up by the agitators. They are now the 'Street Railway Workers' Union.'

"It is a fact that no non-union workman in any of the trades necessary for the rebuilding of San Francisco could get a job in this city and keep it twenty-four hours. Not a building contractor in the city would dare to face the demand for a non-union workman's dismissal that would certainly be made.

"It would not be fair to blame all union men for these pitiable conditions. Many of them are decent, honest citizens who see the evils of the system and regret them. But the machinery of the union has in every case fallen into the hands of the professional agitators and grafters. The decent men pay their dues, take the benefits of the union, stay away from the meetings and let the agitators wield the entire influence of the respective organizations, political and industrial.

"Under the leadership of Harrison Grey Otis, Los Angeles has fought the unions until their influence is confined to its legitimate limits. President David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford university says that Los Angeles ought to erect a monument to Mr. Otis. But in San Francisco union labor, given over to the most disreputable leadership, plunders at will through the officials it has elected, and strangles industry in the manner described.

"Under the circumstances the city has made surprising progress toward rebuilding, and nobody who has seen the industry and the confidence of the citizens doubts that the new city will be bigger and better than the old. But its coming is being delayed and hampered in every possible way by the unions, which are now supremely dominant. These are facts that are recognized by every intelligent and unbiased San Franciscan.

"One of the leading architects in the city went over the ground with the San correspondent, and then he said:

"But for heaven's sake don't mention my name. We can't afford to antagonize these people openly."

"To one who knows the yellow of union labor papers and ruffianism with which it is employed, this attitude does not appear indefensible. A few clergymen have had the courage to tell the truth about these things from their pulpits, but with these exceptions not a single public voice is raised in San Francisco against the tyranny that all know and feel."

"If President Roosevelt wants to attack the most damnable trust that the country knows anything about, he will find in the stricken city of San Francisco an object lesson worthy of recognition.

"The International Policyholders' committee of the New York Life and Mutual Life Insurance companies, urge all policyholders who have not voted for the election of officers, to do so without delay. The election closes on the 18th of this month and the company, through its agents, is doing everything to elect the company's ticket.

"The President's message will be read in congress tomorrow, and many people are waiting anxiously to see what policy will be outlined. It is safe to assume that congress will not find much time to devote to the revision of the tariff, at the short session, and the country will not be disturbed by threatened legislation.

"The United States has 6 million farmers who produced this year about 7 billion dollars' worth of products, an average of nearly $1,200 each. This great volume of cereals fed the nation and left a reasonable surplus for export. This is the basis of prosperity, and the industries have flourished in marked degree."

"Cornelius Shea, of teamster strike fame, is having a rough time in the Chicago investigation, now going on, and organized labor will suffer as the result. The people are discovering that corporations are not the only trusts in existence, and that graft in labor circles is not uncommon."

"Secretary Wilson, of the department of agriculture, says in his annual report, that the value of farm products this year is $6,759,000,000, which is half a billion more than the value of last year's crop. The farmer, as well as everybody else, ought to be happy."

"The entire products of many of the steel mills is contracted for 1907, and the same condition prevails among the textile industries. While the extent of railway improvements will depend largely upon ability to secure money, of which some 400 million dollars is wanted.

"Binks was hurrying across the station yard wrapped in thought and a heavy overcoat when his contemplative mood was brought to a sudden termination by a cab almost running over him. Cabby pulled his horse up with a jerk and gave his opinion in plain English about absent-minded people.

"'Couldn't you see the bloom in 'oss?' he asked, with a withering glance.

"See it!" gasped Binks, looking contemptuously at the specimen between the shafts. Then he stepped on to the curb. "I didn't see your horse when I stood in front of him," said Binks, "but I can see something when I look at him sideways."—Tit-Bits.

"In No Danger. Mrs. Minks (severely)—George, there is an account in the paper about a business man leaving his wife and running off with a pretty typewriter girl.

Mr. Minks—Indeed.

"Yes, and it's the third account of the kind I've seen this week."

"That doesn't interest me."

"It does me. You have a pretty typewriter girl in your office."

"No, we haven't. My partner eloped with her last week."—N. Y. Weekly.

SUDDEN SLUMP IN THEATRE BUSINESS

May Result in the Cancellation of Some of Janesville's More Important Dates.

That Janesville has been favored of late by more high-class theatrical attractions than it could or would support, seems to have been demonstrated by the last fortnight's business. The experiment of substituting one of the notable productions of the year for a "ten-twenty-third" attraction (which is sure to fill the house) on a holiday proved such a dismal failure, so far as the box office was concerned, that it is safe to say it will not be tried again. The dollar matinee of Charlotte Walker and Vincent Serrano in "On Parole" Thanksgiving Day brought in a paltry $112 and the receipts in the evening were $250, while at Rockford "The Umpire," an infinitely inferior production from the artistic standpoint, gathered in $2,200 at a $150 matinee and evening performance. "The Squaw Man," which comes here tomorrow night, took in $1,800 at Aurora the same day.

"On Parole" needed $500 to clear Janesville with even a fair profit. As it was, it pocketed a big loss. The local theatre's share of the gross receipts was less than $90 and its expenses amounted to over $75. The receipts for "The Stolen Story," which appeared here Thanksgiving eve, were $112, while it cost the company $200 to jump from Kalamazoo, Michigan, to Janesville.

Most of the attractions come here on a percentage basis, sharing the gross receipts on a basis of from 75 to 80 % for the company and 25 to 20 % for the local management. The local management must furnish the orchestra and a certain amount of printing and in many instances it is stipulated in the contract that the right to fix the prices of seats is exclusively reserved by the owner. In the case of DeWolf Hopper and his company, which recently appeared here in "Happyland," it was a big, expensive organization, and the receipts—its ability to get out of this city with any profit whatever—should have been $1,200. As it was, the attraction played at $700. The best seats were sold at $2 here, while it is true that in Milwaukee where expenses were necessarily less—transportation being eliminated for several days—and the seating capacity of the theatre larger, the highest prices were $1.50. As a matter of fact, however, it is very seldom that this admission-rate discrepancy in the large and smaller cities exists. "Square deal in prices—tickets from 50 cents to $2" is the advertising bulletin for the forthcoming appearance of the Sothen-Marlowe forces in Chicago.

Every time a splendid, artistic production goes unappreciated in Janesville the New York and Chicago managers are promptly informed by wire and the city gets a black eye, so far as its reputation and chances for the future are concerned. Either the offending municipality is put on the probation list or it is definitely crossed out.

Manager Myers is much disheartened at the turn affairs have recently taken and is seriously considering the advisability of cancelling some of the more important of his bookings. Although he announces the majority of his big dates as early as August, the people of culture and taste on whom he expects to rely for support appear to pay no attention to them in planning conflicting entertainments. There are larger percentages, bigger audiences, and more money in the screaming melodrama and the howling farce and the question which naturally presents itself is: "Why hesitate?"

Looking for Trouble.
It is only necessary to become deeply interested in coincidences to discover them on all sides. Resolve to record all that come to hand, and they seem to multiply until you can regard yourself as providentially favored in this direction. If your calling develops a taste for matters of this kind—for example, if you are a writer, with a keen sense for the literary possibilities and dramatic effects of such coincidences—is it strange that you should meet with more of them than your prosaic neighbor, to whom they would be trivial and dull? If you cultivate the habit of having presentiments and of regarding them as significant, is it strange that they should become more and more frequent, and that among the many some should be vaguely suggestive or even directly corroborative of actual occurrences?

I know of persons who detected the gradual growth of such habits in themselves and wisely decided to check the tendency before it became pernicious. They began to neglect them or act in the teeth of them, and, I am unable to discover that they have fared worse than those who religiously honor and obey these premonitions.—Robert Grant in Scribner's.

A Flea Works the Hammer.
At Essen, Germany, in the great Krupp gun works, which are situated at that place, there is a hammer that weighs 50 tons. This hammer works in connection with an anvil weighing 80 tons, which, in turn, is placed on an anvil block weighing 120 tons. Professor Schumann, a "trained flea man" of Bern, Switzerland, visited Essen and the great war machine works a few years ago. Upon returning home he set about making a model of the great hammer which should be complete in every detail, but on such a minute scale that the hammer could be raised by a flea instead of by a 100 horsepower engine, as in the original. In its completed state this wonderful miniature model, —frame, hammer, pulleys, etc.—weighs but 1 1/2 grains! The hammer and anvil are both of solid gold; the pulleys German silver and the framework platinum. A flea, trained by Mr. Schumann, the maker of the model, will, at the word of command, hoist the hammer to the top of the frame, where it is automatically set free, descending in precisely the same manner as the monster after which it was modeled.—St. Louis Republic.

Indistinctness.
"The hotel manager has discharged the new porter."
"What was the trouble?"
"Why, there was a fire in the hotel early this morning and the porter was told to wake up the guests."
"Yes."
"He was a brakeman on a passenger train for ten years and had to call all the stations. So when he yelled 'fire' nobody understood what he was saying."

FOUND HUSBAND WHO DESERTED

POLISH WOMAN TRACED MISSING SPOUSE TO JANESVILLE.

NEW HOME AND FAMILY HERE

Matter Was Settled Out of Court, the Long-Separated Couple Agreeing to Reunite.

After fifteen years of separation, during twelve of which neither heard from the other, and the husband met a new sweetheart and became head of a new family, Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Hryszczyzn were reunited in Janesville Saturday afternoon and were to move to Chicago today to live happily "until death do them part."

Hryszczyzn came to America in 1891, leaving his wife and three children in their native village in Poland-Austria. For three years he wrote regularly sent money for the family's support. Then he became enamored of a pretty widow, also a Pole. The home correspondence was dropped and he became head of a new family. At the same time he changed his name to John Michalowski and by that cognomen was listed in the Janesville directory. Of late years he, with his new family of woman and three children, have been living in Spring Brook, where he owned a home, being a man of thrift and having regular work with the Rock County Sugar company. Within the past year, an immigrant, Klitka by name, from the man's home village in the old country came to Janesville, met Michalowski and recognized him as Hryszczyzn. The newcomer reported back to the deserted wife. Two of the children had died and the one surviving, a girl of seventeen, was recently married. The woman then started on a search for her missing husband. She arrived here last Wednesday and took legal action to straighten affairs, starting suit for divorce and securing a writ of Ne Exeat, preventing Hryszczyzn from leaving the state, he having said to friends he would disappear should his wife ever find him out. Her attorneys were Ryan & Oestreich and on Friday afternoon the husband and wife met in the lawyers' office. Matters were discussed and a second meeting was held Saturday. The estranged couple agreed at that time to "kiss and make up." Matters were arranged with the second love and her children by selling the Janesville house and lot to her son, who was born by a husband who died before she met Hryszczyzn, and the advancement of $300 on a mortgage, this son being married and unable under other circumstances to set up housekeeping and prepare to care for his mother and three half brothers and sisters.

MADISON WRANGLE
OVER INTERURBAN

Some of the Aldermen do Not Want to Grant Mr. Montgomery 40-Year Franchise for Line to Stoughton.

When the Janesville & Madison interurban situation was cleared up at this end of the line by the granting of a 50-year franchise with liberal freight carrying privileges, it was supposed that all was clear sailing. It now develops that some opposition has come to light in the Madison city council with regard to the terms of the proposed franchise for building a line to Stoughton which President Montgomery of the Capital City traction company has asked for. Mr. Montgomery wants a 40-year franchise and some of the aldermen want the time reduced to 26 years. Louis W. Bridgman, a reporter on the Madison Journal which is vigorously supporting Mr. Montgomery, was a visitor at the Gazette office today. He is investigating local conditions and will carry back a report of what the Rockford interurban has done for the country through which it passes and what Janesville people are expecting of the Madison line. He has just returned from a trip to Oshkosh where he learned that the interurbans running from that city south to Fond du Lac and northward have borne a direct relation to an unprecedented increase in the business and material prosperity of the cities they connect.

Dwight Defends Wright

Tennis Authority Says the Ex-Champion Is a "Pure Amateur."

Deplores Irresponsible Charges Made Against the Famous Player.

Much publicity has been given to indirect charges against the amateur standing of Beals C. Wright of Boston, ex-amateur champion tennis player and member of several Davis international cup teams, which insinuated that both the British and United States Lawn Tennis associations would bring charges against him and debar him from competition both abroad and in America.

However, Secretary Newburn of the British Lawn Tennis association and W. Herbert Collins, president of the All England Tennis club, have denied any such intention in toto and have expressed complete faith in Wright's amateur standing.

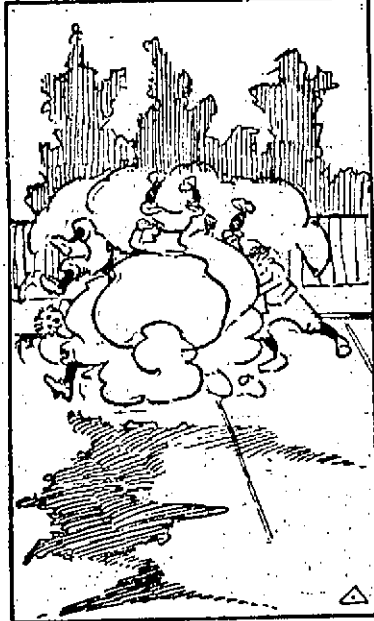

Recently, at his home, 225 Beacon street, Boston, Dr. James Dwight, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, granted an interview to a reporter and repudiated the statement that his association contemplated any investigation and defended Mr. Wright as warmly as did the British officials.

"On general principles," said Dr. Dwight, "I do not believe in answering vague and irresponsible charges on the theory that if one offers excuses he admits the need of some defense, but in the case of Beals Wright I feel that

The Roundup By Willie West

Reformed Football Looks to Be as Rough a Game as Ever. "Grand Stand" Players.

From all indications the 1906 brand of reformed, debrutalized and "lady-fied" football is as dangerous as the good old bone smashing game ever hoped to be. The list of deaths this year is by no means insignificant, and scores of men have been badly injured. The intercollegiate rules committee is a wise bunch. Its members aroused a tremendous amount of newspaper comment on the angelic beauties of the new game, and the public's condemnatory voice was stifled. Then the players proceeded to put the new rules into effect and soon learned that there were about sixteen different ways by which mass plays could be formed and executed if conditions made them necessary.

Football will never be devoid of mass plays so long as the players can merge into a compact group the moment the ball is put into play.

There is little more to be said just now about the new rules, save perhaps that the scare concerning a "scramble" for the ball after an on-side kick has abated. Everybody knows that a kicked football usually bounds toward the opposing team or back from it, and the head-on collision on this particular play has not yet materialized. It may happen, but the odds are against it if experience counts for anything.

There must be a flaw in the abstract of the heavyweight championship title, for which Sam Berger and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien meant to contend. The heirs of One Eyed Connelly, Denver Ed Smith and Hughes, the "dangerous blacksmith," have grounds for a protest.

"The Harlem Ticker" and "The Cherry Hill Rooster" recently fought a six round bout in a New York club. Both are Italians.

What's in a name, anyway?

Once in awhile we meet football players who are too proud to follow advice. During practice they are tractable enough, but once they get out on the field they drop all thought of previous instructions and proceed to play entirely according to the dictates of their own judgment.

They think that an individual play that puts them into the newspapers the next day is far more desirable than participating in a "team play" that may give some one else the apparent glory.

These so called "grand stand" players are a big handicap to a team, as a rule, and they seldom last more than two or three games.

The "grand stand" player usually winds up his career by making some spectacular error that more than offsets his former renown. Then he learns that one hits the ground much harder when falling from a lofty height than from a lower notch.

"Fat" De Witt, the former Princeton captain, was the only "grand stand" player that I ever knew to get away with the goods. Very few people could follow his example and achieve a like result.

Stars of Princeton Eleven

E. Dillon, Quarterback of Exceptional Brillancy. Cooney, Great Tackle.

Both Men May Win Positions on All American Team For 1906.

The Princeton university football eleven has several individual stars in its lineup that stand at the top of the profession this year.

Quarterback Dillon of the Tiger team, for instance, will go down in Princeton athletic history as one of the best and most heady players who ever graced the important position for Princeton, and there have been many great and famous quarterbacks on the teams of old Nassau.

As a performer young Dillon is possibly better than as a director general. However, he runs the eleven in splendid style and with lightning quickness in lining up and getting the ball into play. But Tenney seems to get more smoothness in the running of the Tiger machine when he gives the signals and possibly might show more and better results, but as a player in action and for individual excellence E. Dillon has a grand, good chance of being selected as the All American quarterback.

And that is another to which all college players aspire. It is occupying a niche in the football hall of fame.

Then there is Cooney, the smashing, muscular, bullheaded tackle. Opposing teams have always hated to aim plays at Cooney's station in the line.

Cooney was captain of the Princeton eleven last year, and he won that high honor purely through his indomitable courage and keen insight into the plans of his opponents. He has the peculiar and most valuable faculty of "smelling out" his opponent's intentions. Very few "fake" plays ever pulled Cooney away from his position. He covers a big slice of territory and covers it well too.

Aside from his great work as a defensive tackle Cooney has always proved a reliable ground gainer. He hits the line terrifically hard, and it is one of the toughest jobs in the world to get him off his feet.

One of the Yale backs said of Cooney a few days ago:

"The only way to keep that fellow from gaining distance is to turn him over on his back and sit on his stomach with both feet against his windpipe."

Like E. Dillon, Cooney will probably win a place on the All American team for 1906.

FORECAST OF THE SHORT SESSION

NOT MUCH GENERAL LEGISLATION IS POSSIBLE.

MAY PASS THE SHIP BILL

Its Friends Are Hopeful of Success—Senate Must Take Up Case of Reed Smoot.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The passage of the appropriation bills, and as little other general legislation as possible. Such, in brief, is the forecast for the short session of the fifty-ninth congress.

There has not yet been time for as general an exchange of views among members as is ordinarily desired by leaders before expressing their views, but all seem to regard the present situation as so simple as to need comparatively little intercourse to arrive at an understanding. It is evident that for various reasons it will not be possible to do much on the appropriation bills before the holidays and this circumstance will practically have the effect of condensing the consideration of the 14 large supply measures into two months. Considering that the aggregate of the appropriations to be made will approximate $1,000,000,000, some senators and members express the opinion that congress cannot do better than give all of its time to these measures.

Ship Subsidy's Chances.

The ship subsidy bill probably will be an exception to the rule for no general legislation. The friends of that measure have never been more insistent than now. They are extremely hopeful, and yet very apprehensive. The bill has passed the senate and is in committee in the house. The committee has heretofore been quite evenly divided, but the advocates of the bill believe that they will be able to get it out in the season, and they hope for its consideration when once reported to the house. Speaker Cannon has given no positive assurances as to his attitude, but the bill's supporters find encouragement in his silence.

One incident that is very materially helping the subsidy is the recent speech of Secretary Root in support of it. The fact that the speech was delivered at Kansas City is helpful, as the ship bill has found its principal opposition in the interior of the country. There have been some significant conferences on the bill among the most influential members of the houses.

The senate has on its calendar two important house bills, the Immigration bill and the Philippine tariff bill, but there are snags in the pathways of both of them. There is still intense opposition to the Philippine bill, especially, and it is not believed that it can receive serious consideration during a short session.

The session bids fair to be productive of many bills, and also of much oratory.

Currency Bill Wanted.

Not a few members of both houses are anxious to meet the demands of the bankers and others for a more elastic currency, and it is quite certain that there will be efforts to supply this want, but there are so many plans that even the most sincere believers in the necessity almost despair of accomplishing anything in that direction during a short session.

The recommendation of the president in the interest of a national inheritance tax is awaited with eager interest by many, and there is no doubt that a large following could be secured for a measure of the character he will outline, but, as in the matter of currency reform, the few weeks of the session will not suffice for adequate consideration. It is also recognized that the present plethoric condition of the treasury would furnish strong argument against the proposed innovation. Suggestions looking towards amending the railroad rate laws are not expected to bear fruit this session. All these matters and many others are certain to receive attention in debate.

Among the questions slated for a liberal share of discussion, the tariff stands at the head of the list, but no one has the least idea that any serious effort will now be made to secure the modifications which even many Republicans think desirable. The president, who himself desires some changes, has recently promised his congressional callers that he will not ask to have the subject taken up at this time. The Japanese question, the discharge of the negro soldiers, the desirability of an income tax, the result of the late elections and the trusts are also slated for discussion, and it is even expected that some of these questions, if not all of them, will receive oratorical attention from Democratic members as soon as the first appropriation bill is laid before the house.

Case of Reed Smoot.

The senate will give attention to the case of Senator Reed Smoot, but what it will do about it, not even the senate wishes now to contemplate. There has from the first been a disposition to put the Smoot matter aside, but with the report of the committee on privileges and elections on the calendar and Chairman Burrows quite determined to press consideration, the fact that the matter must be dealt with is beginning to impress itself upon members, and they are preparing seriously for its consideration. The Michigan senator will set the ball rolling Monday, December 10, in a speech in which he will review the entire case, and he will doubtless be followed by other members of his committee for and against the Utah senator. The resolution before the senate merely declares Mr. Smoot to be not entitled to his seat, and much opposition is likely to be made to its form. It is considered equivalent to a resolution of expulsion, but, unlike a declaration for expulsion in explicit language, it does not require a two-thirds vote to pass it. Mr. Smoot's friends will not yield this advantage without a struggle. The question is a privileged one and Senator Burrows has expressed his determination to utilize all his rights in keeping it to the front.

Much interest attaches to the president's forthcoming recommendations concerning the Panama canal, especially because of his recent visit to the canal zone. It is not expected that he will ask much legislation beyond the necessary appropriations, and there is a general disposition to grant these. The increase of the navy will receive much consideration, but there is still opposition to the proposed ship of the Dreadnought class.

NOT TO BLAME, SAYS MATTOX.

Puts Responsibility for Wreck on Operator at Lawyers.

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 3.—Operator G. D. Mattox, who is charged by officials of the Southern Railway company with being responsible for Thursday's wreck, ten miles below Lynchburg, made the following statement Sunday:

"The statement of officials of the Southern railway that I have been missing since the wreck and could not be found, although detectives of the company were scouring the country for me, is without the slightest foundation. I have been at my boarding place practically all of the time since the accident.

"I am not to blame for the wreck. Operator L. Clemmer and a student operator were both in the office and heard the operator at Lawyers give me a clear track for No. 33 (the train to which President Spencer's car was attached). He gave me a clear block for No. 37 at 6:12, and the train passed the block at 6:14. I did not give No. 37 a clear track until the operator at Lawyers gave me authority and I can prove this by Operator Clemmer and by the student operator, who has been studying at the office for the past year. When No. 37 had entered the block Lawyers told me that No. 33 was by, and when I asked him the time so I could record, he opened his key and did not reply. No. 37 had gone then."

THE NOBLEST STUDY

Of mankind is man and the most profitable for the advertiser. The merchant who caters to the whims and foibles of a fickle public is the merchant that a public is most willing to patronize, in other words an exemplification of the adage, "You scratch my back and I'll scratch yours."

Are you studying the public and publicly stating every day why you expect the public to patronize your store? There is but one thorough way in which this can be done, and it is through the columns of "The Gazette."

Do you buy clothes for more than one? If you do, the store ads, now-a-days should be mighty interesting reading to you.

"The button which I had was imperfect. This was my starting point. Through letters of introduction which Mr. Mitchell gave me I succeeded in obtaining the assistance of the jeweler. They gave me the name of the man who had carved the cameo for them, but they knew nothing of the imperfect button. They had also lost track of the cameo cutter. It took me over a month to trace that man, even with the aid of the Paris police. Finally I found him, and he told me that he had sold the button to a friend. This friend I found after some delay, and he admitted that he had once had the button, but that he had given it to a woman. More time was lost in discovering this woman, but when I did she, too, recognized the button and said that it had been stolen from her by another woman, whom she described as a creole. Thus at last I got on the track of the Montalbon, for that was the name which she used in France. Under this name it was easier to follow her. I soon learned that she had a companion, of the name of Jean Moltaire. I then easily found that Moltaire had been in the employ of the Paris jeweler as a shipping clerk. It was he who had written the two descriptions of the jewels, one of which I found among the woman's effects and the other in Mr. Mitchell's possession. This was a suspicious circumstance, but we know now how it was that the handwriting matched, a fact which had puzzled me greatly. It seems that Mr. Mitchell at one time had bought some valuable papers from the Montalbon woman, paying her with diamonds and recommending her to his Paris jeweler to dispose of them."

"That," said Mr. Mitchell, "was partly to get her out of this country and partly to recover the diamonds, which I did, through the dealer."

"So he told me. It was when she received the money from them that she noticed Moltaire. It was not long after that the second set of jewels were sold to Mr. Mitchell. This clerk, of course, knew of the transaction, because he packed them for shipment. Then he must have persuaded the woman to accompany him across the Atlantic, with the design of stealing the gems from Mr. Mitchell as soon as he should take them from the custom house. This is seen from the fact that three days after the shipment this man resigned his position, and from that time all trace of both the man and the woman in Paris is lost."

"From which you deduce that they followed the jewels?" said Mr. Mitchell.

"Of course. The man and woman separated here to avoid suspicion. By a trick the woman obtained possession of apartments in the very house, where your intended lived, while Moltaire stopped at the Hoffman, which, of course, is very near your own hotel. As soon as you went to Boston they followed and registered at the same hotel. You obtained the jewels from the custom house, and they entered your room and robbed you during your absence. Your theory of the murderer's actions after the jewels were recovered by you is probably correct. He went back to hunt for them, hoping that she had not placed them in the satchel or rather that she had taken them out of it, since you yourself placed them there. I think there is no point left unexplained."

"Pardon me," said Mr. Thaurer, "I think you are wrong. You have not to my mind quite connected this man—what did you call him? Jean Moltaire, was it not? Well, I do not see that you have traced his hand to the crime."

"I think that I have," said Mr. Barnes.

"You do not make it clear to me," said Mr. Thaurer, as coolly as though discussing some question in which he had but a passing interest. "You say that your Montalbon woman noticed this Moltaire when she sold her diamonds. Later that both were missing from Paris. The woman turned up in New York, but how do you prove that Moltaire did not go to—let us say Russia?"

"No," said Mr. Barnes, "he did not go to Russia. Suppose that I should tell you that I ferreted out the fact that this name Moltaire was but an alias, and that the man's true name was Montalbon? Then, when we remember that the woman's name had been cut from all her garments, is that not significant?"

This speech made a mild sensation, but Mr. Thaurer remained unmoved. He replied calmly:

"All things are significant—how do you interpret this fact, supposing that you could prove it?"

"This Moltaire was really the dead woman's husband. They quarreled many years ago, and she went to New Orleans, where she kept a gambling house, having learned the trade from him. When they met again in Paris, she recognized him. Then, when the fellow conceived the idea of following the jewels, it suited his purpose to effect a reconciliation so that he might use the woman as a tool. After the murder it would be to his interest to hide the name of Montalbon by cutting out the marks on the woman's clothing."

"Pardon my pursuing the argument," said Mr. Thaurer, "but I find it entertaining. You surprise me, Mr. Barnes, at the ready way in which you read men's actions. Only are you sure you are right? Suppose, for instance, that the woman had cut out the marks herself long before, at some time, when she was using an alias, then your fact would lose some of its significance, would it not? Circumstantial evidence is so difficult to link, you see? Then, having lost that link, would you prove Moltaire or Montalbon guilty? Being the woman's husband is no crime in itself."

"No," said Mr. Barnes, deciding that the time had come for an end of the controversy. "Being the woman's husband does not count in itself. But when I procure in Paris the photograph of Moltaire, left by accident in his room at his lodgings, and when I recognize that as the same man whom Mr. Mitchell suspected and trapped into stealing the ruby, and when upon my return to New York I find that ruby upon that very man and recover it, then we have some facts that do count."

"You recovered the ruby?" said Mr. Mitchell, amazed.

"Here it is," said Mr. Barnes, handing it to Mr. Mitchell. Mr. Thaurer bit his lip, and by a strong endeavor retained his self control.

"Mr. Barnes," said Mr. Mitchell, "I am sorry to disappoint you, but this is not my ruby."

"Are you sure?" asked the detective with a twinkle in his eye.

"Yes, though you deserve credit, for, though not the ruby, it is the stolen stone. I have a complete set of duplicates of my jewels, and in making my little experiment I did not care to bait my trap with so valuable a gem. I therefore used the duplicate, which is this. But how have you recovered it?"

"I have been in New York for several days. I have devoted myself during that time to a personal watch upon Montalbon. Yesterday, to my surprise, he went to police headquarters and begged for a permit to inspect the stolen jewels, saying that through them he might throw some light upon the mystery. His request was granted. Suspecting treachery, I subsequently obtained a similar permit, and investigation with the aid of an expert showed that the bold scoundrel had handled the jewels, and so managed to change the imitation stone which he stole at the festival for the real one in the set which figured in the train robbery."

"By Jove," said Mr. Mitchell, "he is an artist. Then I am indebted to you after all for recovering the stone? But tell us how did you accomplish it?"

"I overheard Montalbon once say that a wise thief would keep a stolen article upon his person, so that it could not be discovered without his knowledge. Therefore I felt certain that he would himself adopt this method. When the conversation this evening reached a point where it was evident that all would be disclosed, the man, who is present, dropped the ruby into his glass of burgundy, where it would be out of sight and easily recovered or swallowed. Later he attempted to dispose of it in this way, but I quickly drank his glass of wine, the ruby thus passing into my mouth. And now, Mr. Montalbon, I arrest you in the name of the law." Saying which the detective put his hand upon Mr. Thaurer's arm. The other guests jumped up, excited and expecting a scene. To the astonishment of all, Thaurer remained quiet for a few moments, and then, speaking slowly and distinctly, said:

"Gentlemen, we have heard several stories here tonight. Will you listen to mine and suspend judgment for a few moments?"

"We will hear you," said Mr. Mitchell, marveling at the man's nerve. The others resumed their seats, all except the detective, who stood just back of his prisoner.

"I will trouble you to fill my glass," said Thaurer to the waiter, and after being served he coolly sipped a mouthful.

"I shall not bore you with a lengthy recital," he began. "I shall simply make a statement. Society, the civilized society of today, frowns upon and punishes what it terms 'the criminal class.' Yet how many have ever examined into the existing state of things and analyzed the causes which make the criminal a possibility? The life of such a man is not so inviting that one would adopt it from choice, one I mean who had moral instincts. With the naturally immoral it would be otherwise, of course. But if one be born immoral, who is to blame? The individual himself or the antecedents, including both parents and circumstances? We pity the man who is congenitally tainted with disease, and we condemn that other man who is tainted in morals, though his condition is analogous and traceable to similar causes. Such a man I am. I confess that I am and always have been a criminal, at least in the sense of acquiring money by what are termed illegitimate methods. But you will say, Mr. Barnes, turning for a moment to the detective, and thus while speaking to him attracting his attention, so that unnoticed he dropped a small white pellet into his glass of wine, 'that I worked for the jewelry house. Well, whatever I am I have aimed to be artistic, as Mr. Mitchell admitted of me a few moments ago. By seeming to earn an honest living I blinded the keen eyes of the Paris police, so that, though many suspicious have been cast in my direction, conviction has always been impossible. So now, while pretending to explain to you all, I have explained nothing. I simply designed to prevent conviction of the crimes charged against me, as I do, thus."

With a swift movement he drained his wineglass, though Mr. Barnes attempted to prevent him. In ten minutes he was dead.

THE END.

"BONE AGE" ON THE PRAIRIES.

How Many Settlers Lived While Getting Their Claims.

The pioneers of Kansas will never forget the "buffalo bone age." When central and southwestern Kansas were settled the prairie was strewn with buffalo bones. Those were hard times in Kansas and the gathering of these bones, enabled the early settlers to live while they were getting their claims broken out for the producing of crops.

Nine-tenths of the pioneers of that section of Kansas—and there weren't very many at that—had literally nothing but a team and a few household goods that they had hauled from the east in a single wagon, says the Kansas City Star. Of course there were no buffalo, for this was in the late '70s, but their bones strewed the plains, and these bones were the only thing that had a commercial value and they were utilized. They were hauled in great wagonloads to the nearest railway, often from 60 to 100 miles away, and sold.

The horns were the more valuable and they went first, but the rest of the skeleton soon followed. There were no fortunes made by these early bone-hunters, for a large load of buffalo bones brought only from five dollars to eight dollars at the railroad, but the proceeds from a load enabled the settler to buy a little flour, coffee and occasionally meat and lumber.

Professor William D. Marks, speaking of Mr. Edison's visit to this city, said: "He does not think of letting up on his work. He told me that now that he was through with the concentration process he purposed to return to the laboratory and push electricity as far as he could. During the last year or so, while busy with the one concentration process, many thoughts and ideas as to improvements in the various forms of electrical machines and uses had occurred to him, but he had simply made a note of them and put the matter aside until his return to the laboratory. Some of them that he mentioned to me were startling. He believes a few years longer, the world can be sure of many new inventions. Among other things that he will follow up he mentioned the fact that he had thought out a means of producing incandescent light at half of its present cost. This is a very important matter, needless to say. He says he had experimented enough to satisfy himself that it was practicable."—Philadelphia Ledger.

CHINAMAN NEEDED THE RICE.

Sing Had Found a Whole Tribe of His Lost Cousins.

A Chinese cook in one of the homes across the bay from San Francisco was terribly worried about his countrymen who were in the burning town. He knew that Chinatown had been destroyed. He had tried to go across to rescue his relatives, but nobody was allowed to land.

He went about his duties with lagging footsteps and mournful face. For two days he ate nothing, and the sympathy of the entire family was extended to him in his trouble. At last he appeared one morning at breakfast time with a face wreathed in smiles.

"We found cousins," he announced joyfully.

"On being questioned he said that they were lodged in the two rooms which he rented for his own use in the lower part of the town. They were all well and he was 'velly happy.' He took 40 pounds of rice to them that they might not be hungry.

"But, Sing, how many cousins have you? Forty pounds seems a great deal."

He smiled his charming oriental smile, and spread his hands. "Me 80 cousins."—Exchange.

Denmark.

Denmark, although a small country and relatively thinly populated, can certainly lay claim to be the most progressive nation in Europe and is determined not to permit the grass to grow under its feet. The state schools which the government has established for popular instruction in the most advantageous methods of making butter and other agricultural and farm produce, which constitute the staple industry of the kingdom, have already achieved a success the fame of which extends throughout Europe and even to such far-off countries as Japan and Siam. The construction of the Kiel canal by the Germans has had its counterpart in the organization of a magnificent free port at Copenhagen, and now within the last ten days a railroad ferry line has been established from the Danish capital to Malmö, in Sweden, by means of which a tourist can travel all the way from Cadiz, in Spain, or Constantinople, in Turkey, to the northernmost point of Norway, and Sweden without leaving the train.—New York Tribune.

A WARNING

To the People of Janesville.

"Sudden changes in the weather cannot help but result in coughs, colds, bronchial troubles, the grippe, and other sicknesses. The weather is all so bad for old people and those who are weak or have a tendency to any weakness or disease."

Said a member of the Smith Drug Co.: "It seems to me that every man, woman and child in Janesville, especially the aged and run down, should be warned through the columns of your paper to build themselves up and take proper precautions to ward off sickness at this season, and there would be very much less suffering and fewer deaths in Janesville."

When asked what was considered the most universally successful medicine they had ever sold for that purpose, the druggist answered: "Our modern cod liver preparation, Vinol. You know it is not a patent medicine, and it does not contain any useless oil to clog the system and upset the stomach, but it does contain every one of the medicinal, curative and body-building elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods' livers, with nothing but added."

Vinol cures coughs, bronchitis, strengthens the aged, builds up the weak and run down, and makes rich, red blood. If it fails we return your money. Smith Drug Co.

NOTE—While we are sole agents for Vinol in Janesville, it is now for sale at the leading drug store in nearly every town and city in the country. Look for the Vinol agent in your town.
